PROTECT THE BALLOT

Louisville bispatch, Democratic "When a man is assaulted by a lighwayman he may resist by force, and if such resistance results in the injury or death of his assallant the law holds him blameless. Is a man's ballot less sacred than his purse? Is the right to pintect person and property to be granted, and the right to protect the hallot to be denied? If public semilment supports the man who kills the highwayman or the jurglar, will it not also support such resoit to force as may be necessary a underet the right of suffrage? "It regulies a low order of physical courage or duffing to make a success ful bightvayman or burglar. But the ballot thirf is the veriest coaven. He commits his crime by stealth, and thinks it a smart trick. He would not like to look into the muzz'e of a shotgim or a tifle. The sight of a rope and a ltmb would give bim a

"In this country the right of suffrage is the very basis of all other ughts. Upon it rests the right to life and property and the pursuit of happiness. If non may take away the right of suffrage with impunity they may also assattlife and property. Popular government is swept away and our bill of rights becomes meaningless. The very hasts of our civilization is lestro ved.

"If we cannot have free and h nest not have futrness and decency in our nolltical affairs, the sooner we cease maintain a sham republicand subs titute some other system the better for the country. If the people are not to be permitted to vote, or if their votes are not to be counted, we can not hope to restore popular governent in the United States, we cann amborily from the hands of a softsh class It matters but tittle is ether elect ons are stolen by one natt or another, whether Democrats or ke publicans, office seeking politicians r power speking corporations are the beneficiaries, the results must eventnally be the same. The party boss whose power rests upon storen conveht ons and elections rather than the favor of the people is no less dangerous to the fundamental principles of our government than the co noraemment for private gain, and that resorts to the corruption of the ballia arcomplish this purpose.

"Nie man can be a Democrat and accent a party nomination save by free expression of the choice of a majority of his party. The greatest enemy to Democratic principles now abroad in this country is the ballot thief. There can be no deap cincy without the rule of the majority, and this is impossible when during and unscripulous politicians steal nominaicus and election.

"One of the most distressing manifestations of the political infumy now known in Kentucky as Goebelism, is the open declaration of namy men generally considered honest in other affairs that the present contest is to be decided by force and fraud in spile of a uniority. The support of the Denourats, for the sake of party regularity, has undoubtedly lowered Kentucky already and the deternination to count in the (lochel ticket thee, have at least maintained & sen blance of decency and bonesty in polities. "There is a way to check this fever of fraud and to bring men to their down the very foundation of the government to have their own way. Let all such understand that the people of Kentucky have the manhood and courage to assert their rights. Let them understand that ballot threves will be punished, legally if possible, by force if necessary. Let them understand that every man who attenuts to intimidate a voter or to nake a false return will do so at his peril. Let them understand that the neople will defend their right of suffrage as they would defend their right of property and life when assatled by burglar, highwayman or murderer. Let them understand that the black flag is raised ugainst all ballot thieves and that no quarter will be shown. The rogues who would sterl the election are cowards, und when they understand that the people are the earnest, they will not put their lives in peril even to aid the master gentus of dishonesty in politics."
